-----FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE-----
3 COMEDIANS CRASH THE WAREHOUSE THEATRE:
GREENVILLE'S FIRST SHOW OF NATIONALLY TOURING COMICS

Greenville, SC (January 14, 2008) Greenville's first-ever showcase of nationally touring comedians comes to town on March 8, 2008. Producers Greg Brown, Rowan Lischerelli and Paul Savas, bring stand-up comedy back to the Warehouse Theatre with a three-comic show of national acts including Joe Zimmerman, Carlos Valencia and Tim Northern.

"I was poor growing up. We didn't have health insurance. I remember my dad was in this bad accident one time, and they put a paper plate in his head."

- Tim Northern

With fans including Naomi Judd, who liked his "cerebral humor" and Ben Stein, who credits him for assuming his audience has a brain, Tim Northern describes himself as a "word man" and delivers articulate, witty humor.

Joe Zimmerman, who's friendly and playful stage presence combined with creative and original writing, quickly earned him recognition in the comedy community. Being named Charlotte's "Comedian of the Year" by Creative Loafing Magazine is nothing to joke about! Joe's act covers a wide range of topics including (but not limited to) fortune cookies, penguins, why he would like to be killed by a lion, and his heroic failures with women.

Carlos Valencia recently won the crackle.com comedy competition, jet-setting him to Hollywood. He spews original, clever jokes at the audience like the flying innards of a smashed watermelon, if the flying innards of a smashed watermelon had a trademark laid-back, dryly witty delivery. Those who enjoy an alternative to traditional stand-up comedy love Carlos from the outset.
