-----FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE-----

THE SHOW MUST GO ON - EVEN FOR PARENTS

The Warehouse Theatre and A Place to Play
Have Partnered to Allow Parents to Enjoy the Show

January 18, 2008- The Warehouse Theatre and A Place To Play, a drop-in childcare service, have partnered to make it easier for Season Ticket holders with children or grandchildren to go to the theatre.

A Place to Play has offered a 10% discount to Warehouse Theatre Season Ticket holders on the night of shows at the theatre. To show their support of arts in education they will donate the savings to This Wooden O, Warehouse Theatre's educational outreach program that teaches Shakespeare in high schools across the Upstate.

"This is a win-win situation for the Theatre. Our patrons with young children now have another option for safe and affordable childcare during the show and This Wooden O receives a donation!" said Paul Savas, Executive and Artistic Director of The Warehouse Theatre.

"Parents can go out to dinner and enjoy the show knowing their kids are safe and having fun as well," added Tracey Garner, owner/operator of A Place to Play. "We'll even have their teeth brushed and PJ's on when you pick them up!"

A Place to Play is a fully licensed childcare facility providing flexible childcare solutions for families. Reservations must be made by 3pm the night before the show. They have two locations: Augusta Road and Five Forks in Simpsonville. Interested parents are invited to come in for a visit in person or visit the website at www.aplacetoplayinc.com and mention this offer.
